SUMMARY

Subject matter of the dissertation: The role of trade union organizations in the protection of youth rights.

Author of the master’s dissertation: Dzebisova Fatima Radievna.

Scientific supervisor of the master’s dissertation: Candidate of historical sciences, Associate Professor of the department of Creative-Innovative Management and law Chekmenev Dmitry Sergeevich.

Customer organization: Primary Trade Union Organization of Students and Post-Graduates of the Federal State Budget Educational Institution "Pyatigorsk State University".

Topicality of the research: Modern conditions for the formation and development of the rule of law and civil society in the Russian Federation presuppose active work with young people, the protection of their rights, and the formation of a positive legal culture among young citizens of the country. Currently, there are a number of topical problems in this area that require effective decisions to be made. As the present stage of the development of society requires a definitely high level of legal education of the younger generation, it is from the level of youth's legal awareness that the future management of society and the state depends. In this regard, the competent regulation of the rights of student youth, the study of its theoretical and practical foundations is particularly relevant.

Objective: development on the basis of a comprehensive analysis of theoretical and practical aspects of protecting the rights of student youth trade union organizations recommendations for improving this type of activity.

Tasks:
- to disclose the content of the concept and essence of trade union organizations;
- to analyze the current regulatory and legal regulation of the activities of trade union organizations;
- to study modern experience of protection and realization of the rights of student youth by trade-union organizations in Russia;
- to study foreign practice of activity of the trade-union organizations in the field of protection of the rights of student's youth;

- to define the basic principles and mechanisms for protecting the rights of young people of the Primary Trade Union Organization of Students and Post-Graduates of the Federal State Budget Educational Institution "Pyatigorsk State University";

- to develop recommendations for improving the activities of the Primary Trade Union Organization of Students of PSU in the field of protecting rights and realizing the interests of student youth.

Theoretical and practical significance of the research: The results of this research allow us to expand the theoretical understanding of the protection of the rights of student youth and the role of trade union organizations in this field.

The provisions, conclusions, and methodological recommendations of this research can be used by youth organizations and teachers to improve the effectiveness of their work, as well as in the protection and representation of students' rights, in developing state youth policy, teaching courses in the sociology of youth, and state youth policy.

Results of the research: As a result of the research, the main forms of social protection of youth in the Primary Trade Union Organization of Students of PSU were revealed: social work, cultural mass movement, housing and public services, scholarship, organizational activities of the Primary Organization, material support of students, including students of the full cost recovery students, work with foreign students, information support of students, health improvement, promotion of university activists with permits for mountain and sea resorts, etc.

The following problems were also revealed in the field of protection of youth rights: non-modern ways of presenting legal information, rare legal measures, rare cooperation with other university organizations, holding events, usually only within the university, unreached target audience - senior students, inaccessibility all legal information online.
Recommendations: As the main measures to improve the protection of the rights of young people, the following recommendations were developed: the introduction of innovative methods of transferring complex legal information, holding legal events at least twice during the academic year, creating media materials, accessible to students at any time on the Internet and etc. The introduction of such innovations in the activities of the Primary Trade Union Organization of Students of PSU will help to reach a new level in the field of protecting the rights of student youth.